

We don't have prodigal moments or seasons. We live prodigal lives. Whether you have never turned to God, or are returning to Him for the hundredth time, this book is for you. After 30 years of foolish choices, selfish decisions, and bad behavior, Joanna Thomas' life was a train wreck. At age 46, all she had to show for her life was $25,000 of debt, seven years of online dating addiction and promiscuous living, three failed marriages, two lost careers, and a prodigal journey away from everyone and everything she knew. That journey would lead her through the darkest and most devastating season of her life into the waiting arms of a loving and merciful God. Under His care and direction, Thomas was given an extreme makeover. Do-Over: How God Turned My 30-Year Mess Into A Message is a fascinating account, and you'll find a connection in this piece, whether you are single and in the midst of loneliness, are recovering from codependent or toxic relationships, struggling with addiction, suffering from self-esteem issues, or desiring greater obedience in your walk with God. Thomas communicates with integrity, sharing deep reflection on her varied relationships and experiences. She also shares what God has to say in response through biblically-inspiring content, revealing the many dimensions of her personal and spiritual growth. Through her journey into redemption and recovery, you'll also gain a deeper faith as Thomas shares messages from the Word of God, which have healed her brokenness. Joanna Thomas is a self-proclaimed geek for God who is passionate about sharing God's Word and truth with the world. She has been writing about her relationship with Christ since 2008. She makes her home in Northern California where she works full-time as a Systems and Software Analyst.
