

Introduction When I was a child, I lived next door but one to a florist shop, where I started learning flower arrangement. That was my first encounter with flowers. As an only child, I enjoyed playing on my own at home before I knew it. I was a girl who loved various kinds of handicrafts so much. The nearby mountain in my hometown Gifu was a good place to collect pinecones, acorns and many other nuts. For the past few years, I have traveled around Europe as an instructor of flower arrangement as well as a student myself. Every each country I visited has its own wonderful skills of arranging flowers, which gave me a lot of memories filled with unexpected wonders. Gebinde, among of them, I saw in Germany and Austria, surprised me by the abundant use of nuts and spices and the complex and high technological skills shown in the assembling method using wire. Almost all of wreaths with nuts and dry flowers I had seen before were made by bonding with glue. Gebinde is also unique in how to use secondary materials including pearls, seeds and cloth to make leading parts such as flowers and leaves. In addition, nuts, spices and dry flowers are joined to create a piece of wonderful decoration. A complete piece of Gebinde can please not only your eyes but your nose by the fragrance of spices and other materials technically forever in good preservation. Another important player in Gebinde is flowers and leaves made with metal wire called bouillon. Combining with pearls and lace will make parts with more brilliance. Gebinde has a few typical design patterns. Once mastering how to make it, you can enjoy this handicraft in endless ways by changing the combination of materials. You can collect nuts in the mountain or also at a nearby park with a little bit attention. I would be happy if more people enjoy making a gift using gifts from nature, thinking of foreign countries far away, and feel the importance of nature.
