

In the literary imagination, Chicago evokes images of industry and unbridled urban growth. But the tallgrass prairie and deep forests that once made up Chicagos landscape also inspired musings from residents and visitors alike. In Of Prairie, Woods, and Water, naturalist Joel Greenberg gathers these unique voices from the land to present an unexpected portrait of Chicago in this often charming, sometimes heart-wrenching anthology of nature writing. These writings tell the tale of a land in transition - one with abundant, unique, and incredibly lush flora and fauna, a natural history quite elusive today. Drawing on archives he uncovered while writing his acclaimed A Natural History of the Chicago Region, Greenberg hand-selected these first-person narratives, all written between 1721 and 1959. Not every author is familiar, but every contribution is distinctive. From a pioneers hilarious notes on life in the Kankakee marsh to Theodore Driersers poignant plea for conservation of the Tippecanoe River to infamous murderer Nathan Leopolds charming description of a pet robin he kept in prison, the sources included are as diverse as the nature they describe. The excerpts conclude with insightful biographical essays and traverse a wide area of greater Chicago land, from the Illinois River to southwest Michigan, from southern Wisconsin to the Limber lost swamp of northeastern Indiana. A fascinating record of Chicagos changing environmental history, Of Prairie, Woods, and Water captures the natural world in a way that will inspire its continued conservation.
