For decades archaeologists thought the first Americans were the Clovis people, who were said to have reached the New World some 13, years ago from. J. M. Adovasio has spent the last thirty years at the center of one of our most fiery scientific debates: Who were the first humans in the Americas, and how and. And, as sea levels are higher now than they were thousands of years ago, archaeologists searching the coasts for hidden secrets of the first Americans have.

The first Americans crossed the land bridge that linked Siberia with Alaska during the last Ice Age. Gradually, they spread through the continent. By around
